French Action Brings Strongly Worded Threat

Shouting Ends First McCarthy Censure Meet

By RAYMOND LAHR
and HERBERT FOSTER
WASHINGTON (UP) The first session of a special Senate committee hearing censure charges against Sen. Joseph R. McCarthy broke up today in a shouting, gavel-banging exchange between the two sides.

French Action Brings Strongly Worded Threat

By DONALD J. GONZALES
WASHINGTON (UP) — Secretary of State John Edgar Hoover today called for an emergency meeting of the North Atlantic Treaty Council to "weigh the gravity" caused by French rejection of the European Army Plan.

The flurry was touched off when McGiverty demanded to know whether statements attributed to committee member Edwin C. Johnson (D-Colo.) were correct. The paper quoted Johnson as saying, "Democratic Party leaders in London are planning to make a deal with the British government."

Johnson had just told the committee he never said he personally leaked McCarthy.

McCarthy then pressed Watkins to say whether the story was accurate. Watkins silenced him with a flourish.

"It is not material to this hearing," he said.

ing, Watkins snarled, "pounding his gravel as McCarthy insisted on the right to an answer."

"You are out of order," Watkins said.

"I have a right to know," McCarthy insisted.

"Watkins pounded his gravel again."

"You are out of order," he yelled.

"Watkins," his voice rose, "are you going to be interrupted by these diversions?"

He immediately ordered the committee recess until 10 a. m. EDT tomorrow.

Dulles said a recapitulation of U.S. troops in Europe, Persian Gulf, U.S. air force, and U.S. Navy would be given.

Even before Dulles' announcement, the White House said the United States and Great Britain would be "in a position to begin to meet the needs of the

Legion Likely to Favor UMT Program

By WILLIAM GALBRAITH

WASHINGTON, D.C., May 14 (UPI)—The U.S. Army's proposed universal military training program has a good chance of being approved by the House of Representatives, according to a top congressional aide.

Rep. James E. Eastland (D-Miss.) said the program, which would require all young men to spend a year in the military, is "a good idea." He said he would support it if the Senate approves it.

Eastland said he was "not at all" concerned about the program's cost, which is estimated at $1 billion a year. He said he was "not at all" concerned about the program's impact on the economy, which is estimated at $1 billion a year.

He told reporters he has accepted three of these eager and willing to identify themselves in Minnesota, North Dakota and will take on the federal government.

The power contract, under which the Atomic Energy Commission would buy power from the private Dixon-Yates combine for the Tennessee Valley Authority, has been the matter to be investigated by the Senate subcommittee.

The end of EOC investigations of States and the Washington Codebook.

Police Probe Two

The Legion's long campaign for UMT was given renewed impetus by Chairman Joseph P. Sawyer today. He told the Legion's 38th annual convention that he will give top priority to efforts to boost up military reserves.

Although the administration has been reluctant to support such a program yet, it appeared certain to include at least a modified Laniger's group. Democratic Congressman Charles W. Laniger said he has called the contract "several."

Sawyer said one of the first things to be undertaken will deal with credit insurance and will open at Topeka, Kan., Sept. 20, 1946 said Sen. Frank H. Schoeppel, Kansas Republican, will participate, along with Gov. James E. Haig, Gov. Eugene S. Cullum and Frank Carver, governor-elect.

The Logan has not pushed his UMT plan for the past two years because of a belief that it has the chance of passing a Congress. But now Logan leaders are optimistic that its UMT plan has "a reasonable chance of success" in the next Congress.

PHENIX, Ala., Aug. 31.—A dramatic new chapter in the history of vice and corruption in fabulous Phenix City unfolded today with a grand jury report expected to contain more than 500 indictments.

Special Judge Walter B. Jones called Circuit Court into session to receive the first presentation today of the 198-man blue ribbon jury began its investigation of widespread racketeering.

Picked terms of National Guardsmen stood ready to arrest the defendants named in the indictments, probably the greatest number ever returned by a grand jury in Alabama. Until the arrests are made, the names of those indicted must remain secret.

Multiple indictments against some of the gambling big shots were expected to account for many of the anticipated 500-odd true bills. As many as 50 indictments were believed likely against some.

Unemployment Hits High Peak

LITTLE ROCK, Ark.—Unemployment in Arkansas last month reached its highest peak since July 1950.

There was a decrease of 5,469 non-agricultural jobs compared with June.

The Employment Security Division of the state Labor Dept. reported total of 297,400 non-agricultural jobs in July, a decrease of 16,200 compared to the current month.

There were 76,000 jobs in manufacturing plants in July, a drop of 3,200 from the previous month, and a decline of 6,700 from the current month.

Vacation shutouts involving about 1,000 workers in the textile industry mainly were responsible for the decrease in manufacturing jobs from June to July.

The ESD said sawmills and basic camps added 300 workers and furniture industries added 200. Textiles also showed a small general increase.

MAKES SLEEPING EASIER—Mattress maker Nathan Perlman, of Brooklyn, N. Y., seems happy as he holds $2280 that's all his. He found the money in a bag at his shop and turned the find over to the police. When he claimed the find, it became his. Perlman took the money to a Federal Reserve Bank, where the certificate, recalled 20 years ago, were exchanged for new bills.

Says Young Actors Don't Learn Trade

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD — "Someone had to remain loyal to the theater," that was Eva Le Gallienne's explanation of why she has never done a movie until now.

One of the great names of the theater, Miss Le Gallienne is here to act as technical adviser on "Phineas Players," the biography of Edwin Booth The Shakespearean actor and brother of assistant John Wilkes Booth is being portrayed by Richard Burton, star of "The Robe."

Miss Le Gallienne watched with careful eye as Burton dressed in a "Hamlet" costume, quipped a theater mob that was hurling insults and waving banners that accused actors of being traitors.

"That was not part of the bar," she said, "but I should do it."

The actress spoke strongly on the subject of the Bard's plays, and especially Edwin Booth, who died after the shooting of President Lincoln.

When the extras had ended their clamor, I asked Miss Le Gallienne how she had been led to Hollywood. "I was Shakespeare," she replied. "I will do anything to further my three favorite things: Shakespeare, Ibsen and Chekhov."

She is not only advising on technical matters but will also make the Shakespearean films I have heard she should have been playing her first screen appearance in the film "Hamlet" I disagreed with her. "I don't like the film," she said. "I don't like the film," she said. "I don't like the film," she said.

"I thought 'Julius Caesar' was good, but I disagreed with some of the things in it. For one thing, I don't think Mark Antony should have been played as a boy after he has been played as a man. A year later was having his stage experience, his learning to play 'A Streetcar Named Blue' and 'The Great Escape'.

"I liked Olivier's 'Henry V.' I think it was the best I've seen. I don't think this country has any more actors get little chance to her first screen appearance in the film "Hamlet" I disagreed with her. "I don't like the film," she said. "I don't like the film," she said. "I don't like the film," she said.

Unemployment
Hits High Peak

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (AP)—Unemployment in Arkansas last month reached its highest peak since July 1950.

There was a decrease of 5,469 non-agricultural jobs compared with June.

The Employment Security Division of the state Labor Dept. reported total of 297,400 non-agricultural jobs in July, a decrease of 16,000 compared to the current month.

There were 76,000 jobs in manufacturing plants in July, a drop of 3,200 from the previous month, and a decline of 6,700 from the current month a year ago.

Vacation shutouts involving about 1,000 workers in the building industry mainly were responsible for the decrease in manufacturing jobs from June to July.

The ESD said sawmills and basic camps added 200 workers and furniture industries added 200. Textiles also showed a small general increase.

Power Source

No place in North Carolina's 1,224-acre Mount Mitchell state park is less than one mile above the sea level, more than 10 percent.

Huda is second with 10.5 percent.

Says Young
Actors Don't Learn Trade

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—"Someone had to remain loyal to the theater," that was Eva Le Gallienne's explanation of why she has never done a movie until now.

One of the great names of the theater, Miss Le Gallienne is here to act as technical adviser on "Phineas Players," the biography of Edwin Booth The Shakespearean actor and brother of assistant John Wilkes Booth is being portrayed by Richard Burton, star of "The Robe."

Miss Le Gallienne watched with careful eye as Burton dressed in a "Hamlet" costume, quipped a theater mob that was hurling insults and waving banners that accused actors of being traitors.

The actress spoke strongly on the subject of the actor's trade, and she said she was not part of the bar.

"That was not part of the bar," she said. "But they are old."

Miller walked down South Street to the corner and turned to the right.

"You'd better go and vote now," he said to Hudkins and Tanager. "I haven't been in town long enough to vote," Tanager said.

"You've been here longer than the 62 men who just voted," snapped Miller.

Tanager whistled softly. "So what's the noise about?" Miller nodded. "Those 62 votes are enough to swing it. About a hundred people voted before they showed up. I think we'd have made it by 40, maybe 50 votes."

"I don't know," Miller said. "I don't know if we can't get 100 and I thought we'd swing it 170 of the total. But now I see it's all over."

"Have any of the farmers come yet?" "What farmers?" "Those who are still around."

"They only come into town when they have to. The Texas men push them around."

"But they're on your side." "A beam of hope came to Miller's eyes. "If we had enough men and horses."

"He paused. The delivery stable's not a dozen miles from here." "Kaggar's livery stable."

"All the better," Miller suddenly chuckled. "Mose," he shouted. "Quick! Pull a proof of our subscription list!"

While Hudkins followed out Miller's instructions, the newspaperman returned to Tanager. "We can't count them all, but you and some of my friends can reach half of them."

"Those you talk to can tell others."

Ten minutes later, a strident voice called. "Tanager rode out of Sage City."

"You mean I could vote against Jacob Fugger?" the squatter asked with sudden interest.

"You can!" "And what'll Fugger do to any one who votes against him?"

"There's nothing he can do. Besides, he won't know who's voted against him."

Tanager grabbed up his reins. "Think it over. But remember the polls close at 6 o'clock. Get in town before then if you want to vote."

By mid-afternoon Tanager had ridden 30 miles in a wild circle, and had found eight farmers. His circle had brought him close to Sage City again and his heavy horse told him that he could not ride much farther.

Ahead was a herd of Texas longhorns. He circled to the left and saw that he would pass near a cowboy.

The man was slumped in his saddle. As Tanager came up he glanced idly at him and averted his eyes, but suddenly they darted back to Tanager, in sudden shock.

A shudder ran through Tanager. He pulled up his mount.

City. He took the south road, but once he passed the last house, he turned to the west and south, cutting across the prairie.

Then a half-buried sod house loomed up before him. It was a miserable house, built of logs and mud, with sod serving for roofing.

Behind it was a tiny corral in which stood two work-horses and a single cow.

As Tanager rode up, a man came out of the sod house with a rifle in his hands.

The man looked at Tanager through slitted, red eyes. "I don't want no trouble. I'm pulling up stakes in a couple of days and I don't want no trouble with anyone."

"I'm not going to make any trouble," Tanager said. "It's just, well, they're having an election in town today and we're asking everybody to come in and vote."

"Vote for who?" "That's for you to decide. Vote for whoever you please. The main thing is we want you to vote."

"I don't know nothing about voting," the man said, dispiritedly. "I'm a farmer. Learn I thought I was he made a sudden, spiteful gesture with his rifle toward the east. "If those cowboys let me, I had a crop of wheat started and they turned their steers loose on it."

"That," said Tanager, "is what the voting's about. Some of the people in town want to put a stop to things like that. And you can help by voting."

The man shook his head to one side. "Nobody cares about us farmers. Everybody calls us squatters."

"A group of people in town sent me out here," Tanager persisted. "They want to put a stop to Jacob Fugger's one-man rule of Sage County."

"You mean I could vote against Jacob Fugger?" the squatter asked with sudden interest.

"You can!" "And what'll Fugger do to any one who votes against him?"

"There's nothing he can do. Besides, he won't know who's voted against him."

Tanager grabbed up his reins. "Think it over. But remember the polls close at 6 o'clock. Get in town before then if you want to vote."

The man was slumped in his saddle. As Tanager came up he glanced idly at him and averted his eyes, but suddenly they darted back to Tanager, in sudden shock.

A shudder ran through Tanager. He pulled up his mount.

"Tanager," said Dave Helm.

The years disappeared. The man facing Tanager and Dave Helm of Quinn's chief assistants had commanded the town of which Tanager had been a member. And Dave Helm Dave Helm had been present when Tanager and Sam Older had faced each other in that crushing finale.

Legion Seige Has Capital Jumping

By HARMAN W. NICHOLS

WASHINGTON (UP) — The old capital is jumping like a jitterbug to the raucous ball of drums and cow bells, the explosion of firecrackers and the loud laughter of thousands of fun-makers.

The American Legion is in town. And although Washington has seen its share of spectacles and even violence in its eventful history, it has never seen anything quite like a Legion convention before.

Other organizations come and make their speeches and leave without ever slightly altering the city's life. But the Legion convention hits with a smack. It is felt by everybody. It is a unique American institution that has no real parallel for noise and gaiety and blingness and serious purpose.

The convention is thousands of cars that streamed bumper to bumper into the capital's broad avenues and normally quiet streets. It is a sea of Navy blue and gray overseas caps sailing into shops, down the middle of main thoroughfares and across the mall.

It is 44-year-old Lloyd Wilkinson, a Legionaire from Denver who was quartered in the city jail for allegedly assaulting a hotel maid and clerk with a mop and water pitcher. It also is Legionaires standing with their families at the foot of Lincoln's statue.

The convention is 14 con testants in a drum and bugle corps contest received first aid for heat exhaustion, overexertion, and in the case of a cymbal clangor — Lou Bonan no, 15, of Garfield, N. J., a sprained wrist.

It is Helen W. Miller of the Legion housing bureau scurrying around until she found Pennsylvania state police in quarters for 10 horses which Pennsylvania state police intended to ride in tomorrow's mammoth parade. She also found a home for 23 motor cycles belonging to Legionnaire policemen from Fort Worth, Tex.

The convention is throwing the town a little out of whack. But it isn't complaining. The big show means an estimated $7,000,000 in summer dollars business for local merchants.

Ike Praises, Signs Atomic Legislation

WASHINGTON (UP) — President Eisenhower today signed the new atomic energy legislation and declared it will speed the time when the atom "will be wholly devoted to peaceful purposes."

The bill which ignited one of the hottest congressional fights of the year, overhauls the 1946 Atomic Energy Act. One of the changes permits the government, under certain security safeguards, to give nuclear information to America's allies.

The new legislation also, for the first time, opens the door for development of a private atomic power industry within the United States.

Eisenhower, in a statement, took note of the warm debate in Congress over these provisions. He said he feels "some misunderstandings" were revealed during the debate, and added:

"I want our people to know that these provisions are designed eventually to relieve the taxpayer of the enormous cost of the commercial aspects of the enterprise, while fully protecting the public interest in atomic energy."

"In fact, these provisions carry into effect the 1946 policy declaration of the original Atomic Energy Act, that free competition in private enterprise should be strengthened."

Eisenhower expressed confidence that the new measure will be a boon to public and private development of atomic energy. It will lead, he said, to greater national strength.

"Programs undertaken as a result of this new law," the President declared, "will help us progress more rapidly to the time when this new source of energy will be wholly devoted to the constructive purposes of man."

Supporters say one immediate effect will be to stimulate the development of electricity from atomic energy. But even the most optimistic guesses are that commercially feasible power from atomic machines is still several years away.

While the basic objectives of the measure were not questioned, a number of its provisions ran into heavy challenge, especially in the Senate. Much of the argument followed the theme of the longstanding controversy over public vs. private power, with the bill's opponents crying "private monopoly" and its defenders saying it promoted "free enterprise."

On his first trip through the Senate the measure touched off 160 hours of speechmaking, including four round-the-clock sessions. The senators turned down a compromise version in a disagreement over patent provisions.

Satterfield Wins by a Knockout

NEW YORK (UP) — Win or lose, belling Bob Satterfield does it sensationally.

Action plus is the motto of the dynamite-fisted, china-chinned Chicago light heavyweight contender. Either he knocks the other guy out or he winds up on the deck himself.

So far this year, 30-year-old Bob has had five fights. He was flattened in two by Ezzard Charles in February. Since then he has racked up four straight victories via the kayo route. Frankie Daniels of Bakersfield, Calif., became

More Relief in Drought Areas Asked

LITTLE ROCK (UP) — The board of directors of the Arkansas Farm Bureau Federation is asking the U. S. Department of Agriculture for increased relief for Arkansas farmers in drought areas.

The federation asked for speedier action in designating drought disaster counties and more liberal program concerning livestock feed.

A committee, appointed by chairman Joe C. Hardin of Grady, drew up a resolution which was telegraphed to K. L. Scott of the Department of Agriculture.

The telegram pointed out that "Arkansas is experiencing a third successive year of drought" which will injure "the long efforts to create a cattle industry in the state."

The directors also urged the increased use of "the new ACP practice designated for drought areas... the seeding of 'winter grains, cover crops and legumes.' Last week the Department of Agriculture announced that no more counties would be declared drought disaster areas, thus becoming eligible for federal aid until a department official visited them.

GOOD OLD COUCH
NEW YORK (UP) — Pamela Conlon, eight, fell three stories yesterday when she tumbled out of the bathroom window of her home. She landed on an old couch in the back yard.

Her only injuries, minor bruises suffered when she bounced from the couch to the pavement. About 3,750 gallons of water are needed to raise a beef steer.

Little Rock Bank Official Dies

LITTLE ROCK (UP) — James Keith, a vice president of Worthen Bank and Trust Co. of Little Rock, died at a Little Rock hospital yesterday. He was 61.

Funeral services will be at 9:30 a. m. Wednesday at St. Andrew's Catholic Cathedral.

MAN DROWNS
LITTLE ROCK (UP) — A 34-year-old North Little Rock man J. Franklin Gage, 34, drowned yesterday when he apparently fell out of a boat from which he was fishing at Willow Beach, near Little Rock.
